Water Softeners:

EXTEND THE LIFESPAN OF YOUR PLUMBING

Water treatment improves water quality, mainly by removing impurities, to make it suitable for everything from drinking to bathing. There are many different types of water treatment solutions.

In some areas, water has an especially high calcium content (7 grains per gallon or more) and is considered hard. If you live in a hard water area, a water softener is a great addition to your water treatment solution.

By eliminating mineral build-up,

- You'll extend the lifespan of your Plumbing Fixtures—Faucets, Showers, Toilets and Pipes;
- Get better results from soaps and detergents;
- And improve the health of your skin and hair.

The right one for your home depends on where your water comes from, where you live, the plumbing in your house and the needs of the people who live there, including allergies, dietary criteria like salt restricted diets and more.

WATER SAVINGS

Hot water circulator pumps are powerful for water conservation, saving as much as 1000 gallons per person annually. Without these pumps, someone would typically need to leave their tap running for a while and wait for hot water from the heater to make its way through the pipes—that means a lot of otherwise useable cool water is going straight down the drain.
